Churches throughout the US started to lay the groundwork for the network earlier this year, but the Trump administration's crackdown on the undocumented has brought it to life earlier than planned.

The Southern Tier Regional Drug Task Force told us they are investigating a number of heroin overdoses in Northern Pennsylvania.

Goya Foods Pulls Sponsorship Of Puerto Rican Day Parade

Latino Community calls for boycott of Goya

By: Carlos DePonce

Goya Foods will not sponsor this year’s Puerto Rican Day Parade. The decision ends, until further notice, the company’s continuous 60-year partnership with the organization behind the annual event. The New Jersey-based company cited a “business decision” as the reason for pulling their sponsorship of the annual event that’s being held in New York City on June 11 this year. The Puerto Rican Day Parade, which also hosts a variety of other cultural, educational and social events, said the decision could affect the students who receive scholarships from the non-profit organization.

“Goya has made a business decision not to participate in this year’s Puerto Rican Day Parade,” the company said in a statement to HuffPost on last Wednesday. As for whether the decision would apply for future Puerto Rican Day Parades, the company declined to comment.

City of Rochester budget: no layoffs, small tax cut

On Friday Mayor Lovely Warren unveiled her annual operating budget for the City of Rochester.

The mayor’s office expects that city homeowners will see their bill lowered by $63.89 under Warren’s spending plan, a net decrease of $34.91. The proposed budget is $525,604,100, which is 1.3 percent higher than the 2016-17 budget of $515,842,400.

The budget focuses on jobs, safer neighborhoods, and educational opportunities. The city will also be investing in an additional police recruit class in the fall to maintain higher staffing during the following summer demand peak. Dollars are also earmarked to purchase new fire apparatus and continue school fire safety education.

“My budget was designed to keep faith with our residents by lowering the residential tax rate. No layoffs, small tax cut,” Warren said.

More Undocumented Immigrants In US Are Giving Up Hope And Trying For Canada

By: Adolfo Flores

By: Adolfo Flores -Buzzfeed

The ascension of Donald Trump to the White House after threatening to deport high numbers of undocumented immigrants — drove them into hiding to wait for an asylum interview in Canada.

“A lot of people like us are desperate, looking for where to run because they can’t be here, because of this man,” Martha, who has lived in the US for 16 years, told BuzzFeed News in a recent interview.

The family slept on an inflatable bed and three cots inside a yellow and orange mini-au- todium, one door directly below the pew of Pilgrim St. Luke. Across from them, on the stage, another family, a father and his two sons from Colombia, slept under fluorescent lights.

They didn’t leave the church often, just to go shopping at a supermarket’s house or go shopping, though Rev. Gonzalez reminded them to always “walk like they own the place” whenever they left the walls of their sanctuary.

The eldest of the five kids hiding in the church was 13; the youngest, 2. To pass the time, they usually played cards, assembled puzzles, or watched YouTube.

In 2015, Moises left for work 90 minutes before ICE agents banged on his windows at 6 a.m. with flashlights, demanding he open the door.

His mother, who was visiting from El Salvador, his wife, and their daughters hid inside the girls’ room. Martha pulled her daughters to her chest to comfort them—but also to keep their sobs from being heard by agents outside.

His intent was to get better organized before we activated this, but the need is so strong that we just activated it, Gonzalez said of the operation. “They’re doing it because of fear of the new administration.”

The Trump administration is moving to quickly expand the deportation system it inherited from the Obama administration, which deported at least 2.4 million undocumented immigrants, though figures for his last year in office are not yet available. ICE has already identified 33,000 additional beds at 27 locations to hold more detainees for deportation, federal officials are discussing possible agreements with local jurisdictions to enforce immigration laws, and US Customs and Border Protection is looking at relaxing hiring standards to more easily beef up its ranks.

At the same time, within 100 days of President Trump’s executive order expanding the mandate of federal immigration officials to deport nearly everyone living in the US illegally regardless of criminal records, the government this past week reported the arrests of more than 41,000 undocumented immigrants, a 38% increase compared to the same period last year.

Martha and her husband, Moises, didn’t want to see what Trump’s “deportation force” would look like and began preparing to leave for Canada in February. Until they could get their initial asylum interview with Canadian authorities, they spent weeks in limbo waiting for the phone call that would send them to the border.

Homeless in the church basement, hundreds of miles from the life they had built in the US, the girls’ room. Martha pulled her daughters to her chest to comfort them—to keep their sobs from being heard by agents outside.

ICE agents came back two more times after that, and each time the family hid at a friend’s home until they felt safe enough to return, though they kept a lookout for cars they didn’t recognize before venturing out.

“Now we’re on the run, like we’re murderers or something,” Moises said. “It’s traumatizing for my daughters.”

New 43North enticement: Winners could get help from Praxair

What do 43North and Latin America have in common?

The Buffalo-based $5 million startup competition and the industrial gas company are teaming up as part of a new initiative to encourage startup companies that use medical gases to enter the fourth annual 43North competition that awards cash to leading entrepreneurs and startups from around the world. If any of this year’s 43North winners are well aligned with Praxair’s technology and innovation objectives, the company may opt to offer them various co-in cubation services and resources beyond what 43North provides. Praxair, a Fortune 300 company with $11 billion in annual sales, is considered produces and supplies industrial and medical gases. Its largest global research and development facility is based in Tonawanda.

Youth Scholarship and Development Program Announced (Buffalo, NY) As part of a nationwide effort that seeks to improve the lives of young men of Hispanic descent, The Puerto Rican and Hispanic Day Parade of WNY, Association, with the assistance of The Community Foundation of WNY, Buffalo Public Schools, and D’Youville College has moved into the action phase of its Youth Men’s Development Program. The program will focus on keeping young Hispanic men in school and on track to pursue college or vocational education. Francisco Guzman, who was appointed as Chair of the Youth Development Program by Yolanda Martinez-Rodriguez, President, announced the roll-out at the last organizational meeting of the Puerto Rican and Hispanic Day Parade. Francisco Guzman said the Youth Development Programs seeks to “change the narrative” for young Hispanic males in Buffalo, NY.

“The relative success the city has had in the quality of life, education and employment areas, we know those are only averages,” said Mr. Guzman. He also noted, “In looking at the statistics, we know too many young Hispanics are being left behind. Our goal is for Hispanic high school students to reach their potential, regardless of their life circumstances or which ZIP code they were born into.” Guzman laid out the proposal that the program seeks to address:

- The unemployment rate for Hispanics in Buffalo is more than double the national average.
- Only one-third of Hispanic males have some form of post-secondary education.
- Young Hispanic males in Buffalo are more likely to be victims of violent crimes than white males.

The resulting format of our Youth Development Programs includes four “pillars” --- high school completion, post-secondary attainment, workforce development, reducing violence and recidivism.

Each pillar in the plan has a “support council” that works to advance a host of programs based on “best practices” at both demonstration sites, noted Guzman. Program leaders will work with school districts, higher education leaders and community organizations to develop initiatives and curriculum around the program. Guzman advised “We want to make Buffalo a place of second chances for those who’ve stepped off track.” We want to see more Hispanic males in front of the classroom, serving as teachers and role models for our youth."

Puerto Rican and Hispanic Day Parade issues statement on Puerto Rico

The Puerto Rican and Hispanic Day Parade of WNY board and committee members are saddened by all that is happening in Puerto Rican and Venezuela. Both the U.S. Territory and the South American Country are in the midst of economic and social upheaval. The people of Puerto Rico and Venezuela remain in our thoughts and prayers. With our celebration scheduled for August 19th, we do not want to turn a blind eye or cold shoulder to our brethren. Yet, we must stay within the bounds of our organization’s bylaws and the applicable state laws. We are a non-profit organization. Our non-profit status allows us to raise money to pay for the many free activities we provide the community and to grant scholarships through the Miss Borinquen of WNY Program and the Jr. Grand Marshal Scholarship. As a non-profit organization, we are prohibited from participating in political activism. Although we are unable to be politically active, we nevertheless are keenly aware of the issues that face our Hispanic brothers and sisters. As individuals, we have each sought to help in various ways, the least of which is not keeping our brethren in our thoughts.

Police initially had no reason to doubt Acquino’s account, Flynn said. “After the course of our investigation over the past 48 hours, significant questions now exist” over whether it’s true, Flynn said. It’s unclear how Acquino’s ear was torn off. Tom Burton, an attorney for Buffalo’s police union, told WBKB-TV that Acquino was not hit by friendly fire or struck by a bullet from his own weapon. He said no one is sure what caused the ear injury.

Local media reported that during the traffic stop Acquino leaned through the driver’s side window as Hernandez-Rossy attempted to drive away. The officer hung on as the car jumped a sidewalk, went through a hedge and hit the side of the house, the reports said. Messages left with the police department in an attempt to confirm those details weren’t returned Wednesday.

On Tuesday, the office of Attorney General Eric Schneiderman announced it had taken over the investigation. A 2015 state law allows the attorney general to act as a special prosecutor when unarmed civilians are killed by police or if there are questions about whether a civilian was armed.

“We’re committed to conducting an independent, comprehensive, and fair investigation,” said office spokeswoman Amy Spitalnick.

Hernandez-Rossy’s relatives placed balloons at a corner near where he was shot. His cousin Katherine Garcia told WBKB: “We do not know. We do not know what led to the stop and the上がりまわる。
En este segmento viajamos al estado mas grande de la nación americana, California.

California – a western U.S. state, stretches from the Mexican border along the Pacific for nearly 900 miles. Its terrain includes cliff-lined beaches, redwood forest, the Sierra Nevada Mountains, Central Valley farmland and the Mojave Desert. The city of Los Angeles is the seat of the Hollywood entertainment industry. Hilly San Francisco is known for the Golden Gate Bridge, Alcatraz Island and cable cars. If you are planning to visit this wonderful state and have limited time, then you need to make sure that you break it down in several days to enjoy it as much and get a taste to come back again!

Los Angeles is a sprawling Southern California city and the center of the nation’s film and television industry. Near its iconic Hollywood sign, studios such as Paramount Pictures, Universal and Warner Brothers offer behind-the-scenes tours. First you can start by planning a tour of Hollywood and then you can walk in the famous street of Hollywood Blvd where you will find many shops, restaurants and if you are looking for a trendy area, then head towards Melrose place where you will find plenty of trendy shops, restaurants or if you are looking for more luxurious goods, go to Beverly Hills Rodeo Drive the famous street of the Rich and Famous. On your second day, take half day exploring the wonderful museum of the Getty center and then travel to Griffith Park to enjoy a wonderful view of the city, while exploring the Griffith observatory in the evening.

Explore Venice Beach on your third day - People-watching is the reason to visit Venice Beach, which effectively continues from the southern end of Santa Monica Beach without a break. Jump into the flow of the winding Venice Boardwalk, where you can skate or cycle, watch or play volleyball or basketball, and check out the pumped-up gym obsessives who work out at Muscle Beach. For a completely different side of Venice, take a stroll through the idyllic Venice Canals. Street parking is usually jammed, but there are several beachside lots. In the evening head towards Santa Monica Pier, Considered the focal point of Santa Monica Beach, Santa Monica Pier includes a Ferris wheel, aquarium, fairground games and cotton candy stands. On warm weekends, the stretch is busy with families, beach bums and gym bunnies, who work out in public at the original Muscle Beach just south of the pier. Lately, the Pier has played host to a number of outdoor film and music events, bringing a hipper clientele to the boardwalk.

On your fourth day. Explore a tour in one of the several studies in Hollywood like paramount studios etc. or head to Universal Studios Hollywood for a complete day of fun and entertainment.

On days 5 you can explore Long Beach that is only 30 minutes from Los Angeles city center. This city has a lot to offer and you can start by exploring the aquarium of the Pacific and the famous Queen Mary ship that now is a hotel and museum or simply enjoy the beautiful beach along the area.

On day 6 – head towards the Los Angeles county museum of art and spend half day there. Since its 1965 opening, LACMA has showcased thousands of pieces, from Islamic artifacts to European impressionist paintings to modern art. With constantly shifting exhibitions and unique architecture stretched across more than 20 acres of land, LACMA offers a rewarding experience for both serious art buffs and casual travelers. Then drive to the Original Farmers Market and the Grove sitting south of West Hollywood is one of LA’s most beloved landmarks: The Original Farmers Market. Founded in 1934, this cream-colored facility reboils in both residents and tourists with the promise of fresh produce and the aroma of ready-to-eat snacks.

Take time to drive to downtown and visit the Walt Disney Concert Hall - This Frank Gehry-designed concert hall has helped revive downtown Los Angeles, which was once dominated by mundane office buildings and lackluster entertainment options. Now, nightlife and culture burgeon in the area, and the concert hall is at the forefront. The curvaceous, stainless steel exterior is worth a visit alone, but travelers will also want to catch one of the Los Angeles Philharmonic’s performances at the hall.

We hope that you enjoyed this edition and let us know if you would like to know more about other travel places or suggest one.

Los días 5 se puede explorar Long Beach que está a sólo 30 minutos del centro de la ciudad de Los Ángeles. Esta ciudad tiene mucho que ofrecer y se puede comenzar por explorar el acuario del Pacifico y el famoso barco Queen Mary que ahora es un hotel y museo o simplemente disfrutar de la hermosa playa a lo largo de la zona.

En el día 6 - dirigirse hacia el museo del condado de Los Ángeles de arte y pasar medio día allí. Desde su apertura en 1965, LACMA ha presentado miles de piezas, desde artefactos islámicos a pinturas impresionistas europeas hasta arte moderno. Con exposiciones constantemente cambiando y una arquitectura única extendida a través de más de 20 acres de tierra, LACMA ofrece una experiencia gratificante tanto para los amantes del arte serio como para los viajeros casuales.

Luego diríjase al mercado original de los agricultores y el Grove, sentado al sur de West Hollywood es uno de los monumentos más queridos de Los Ángeles: The Original Farmers Market. Fundada en 1934, esta instalación de color crema reeles en los residentes y turistas con la promesa de productos frescos y el aroma de aperitivos listos para comer.

Tome el tiempo para conducir al centro de la ciudad y visitar el Walt Disney Concert Hall - Esta sala de conciertos diseñado por Frank Gehry ha ayudado a revivir el centro de Los Ángeles, que una vez fue dominado por edificios de oficinas mundano y opciones de entretenimiento mediocre. Ahora, la vida nocturna y la cultura florecen en la zona, y la sala de conciertos está a la vanguardia. El curvilíneo exterior de acero inoxidable merece una visita por sí solo, pero los viajeros también quieren coger una de las actuaciones de la Filarmónica de Los Ángeles en el salón.

Esperamos que haya disfrutado esta edición y háganos saber si desea saber más sobre otros lugares de viaje o sugerir uno.

Stepping Stones Child Care CEO suspended, state investigating complaints

(Rochester, NY) The founder and CEO of Stepping Stones Learning Center is under suspension. Mariellen Cupini's lawyer says Cupini was suspended recently by the child care center's Board of Directors.

Stepping Stones does traditional day care but it also cares for people up to 21 years old who have special needs. Its website says it serves 500 families.

Panorama Hispano News learned that not only is Cupini suspended, New York State has hit Stepping Stones with four violations inspections in the past three and a half months. Do you have a child at Stepping Stone? Email Berkeley Brean at bbrean@whec.com

A Little History

In 1994, Mariellen Cupini started Stepping Stones with two teachers and nine children. Now it's in the former Chase Pitkin building in Irondequoit.

On Thursday, I reached Cupini on the phone. She said she couldn't say anything and told me to call her lawyer. In a statement her lawyer wrote: "Ms. Cupini vehemently denies any wrongdoing and is looking forward to the clearing of her name." (See the full statement at the bottom of the story.)

What is the "wrong doing?"

Cupin's lawyer won't say what the "wrong doing" is because of a possible lawsuit. But we checked the website of the New York State Office of Children and Family Services. That's where we found 11 violation inspections in the past 12 months. Most recently on May 5th the state found five violations.

Here's one.

New York State regulations say daycares "must report any suspected incidents of child abuse or maltreatment.”

The state's ruling?

"Not corrected."

On May 9th, the state listed the rule that says daycares must "immediately notify the parent and (state) Office upon learning of the death, serious incident, serious injury, serious condition, communicable illness, or transportation to a hospital" when the child was at the daycare.

The state ruling again?

"Not corrected."

The Office of Children and Family Services emailed this statement this evening: "We are investigating complaints about this program and are working with the licensee. The agency takes all possible steps to make sure children are safe and works with providers to help them come into compliance and stay there."

Click here to access a complete list of violations inspections of Stepping Stones Learning Centers. Enter the zip code 14617 and type Stepping Stones in the "Name" category. Click "Find Day Care." Then click the "i" icon.

I called the director of the Stepping Stones on Thursday and again Friday. I went to her office at the child care center Friday and she refused to meet with me.

Brean: If a parent finds that their child is in a daycare with violations, what should they do?

Barbara-Ann Mattle, CEO Child Care Council: As I said, they need to check and see what those violations are.

Barbara-Ann Mattle runs the Child Care Council in Rochester. She agreed to talk to me in general terms about day cares and violations.

Barbara-Ann Mattle, CEO Child Care Council: The state website will tell you which regulation has been violated but regulations are very broad based. They can be misleading in terms of what the actual incident has been.

I reached out to the Stepping Stones Board of Directors. At least two people said they resigned at the beginning of the year and didn't know about the CEO Cupini's suspension. We are waiting for return phones calls from several other listed board members.

The Statement from Mariellen Cupini's Attorney:

Given the nature of the services provided to the public by Stepping Stones, as well as Ms. Cupini's position within the organization, we understand the media attention this matter has garnered. Unfortunately, at this time we have no comment as this matter is ongoing and may potentially lead to litigation. Ms. Cupini vehemently denies any wrongdoing and is looking forward to the clearing of her name. The work done by Stepping Stones and its staff is invaluable to the community of Rochester and Ms. Cupini is regretful for any delays in the delivery of those services this matter has caused.

Fairport teen raises $15,000 to feed hungry kids

Some people in the community came out in honor of fighting childhood hunger on Saturday - and it was all because of a 15-year-old Fairport student. Peyton Olinski raised 15 thousand dollars in an effort to feed 400 families in the Rochester area with the group "Feed the Children."

Peyton and the organization's volunteers filled a truck with over 100,000 dollars worth of food on Saturday. Each family will get a 25-pound box of food, a 15-pound box of personal-care items, and a box of assorted Disney books.

"I just wanted to always give back to my community, because I'm so fortunate and I wanted to give back to somewhat give them what I have," says Olinski, "That's why I partnered with 'Feed the Children.'"

Nearly 34 percent of Rochester citizens live below the poverty line.

Democratic party designate their candidates

The Monroe County Democratic Committee's annual designating convention was more celebration than spat.

The whole thing led off with the installment of Lovely Warren as the party's mayoral candidate; Warren is, of course, the sitting mayor. She pulled in about 55.6 percent of the weighted vote from the party's city legislative district committees, far more than her opponents James Shepard (38.7 percent) and Rachel Burnhart (5 percent). Warren will likely face primary challenges from both of the other candidates.

Warren had the designation locked up before convention day, so did candidates in several of the other races. Up to the air was a City Council seat and two city school board seats. Incumbents Loretta Scott, Jackie Ortiz, and Dana Miller, as well as school board member Malik Evans and teacher Matt Juda ultimate received the Council designations. Incumbent Van White, as well as newcomers Beatrice Lennon and Natalie Sheppard, received the school board designations.

Warren gave an acceptance speech that was, at various points, a checklist of her accomplishments, a promise to help build up the party, a pledge to work for the city's people, and a blistering call to action against the Trump White House and the Republican Congress. And she did it all to loud cheers; one guy proclaimed, "That's what I'm talking about," when Warren said Rochester is a city worth fighting for.

"I would be the first to admit that we're not where we want to be," Warren told the crowd. "But we're in a better place than we were four years ago."
Drug Enforcement Administration Takes over City of Dunkirk Cocaine Trafficking Cases

The DEA has taken over a number of drug cases from the city of Dunkirk’s Police Department.

Inside sources have indicated that the DEA has expressed concern to the US Attorney about the City of Dunkirk’s Police Departments ability to handle some of the local cases and the US Attorney has agreed to take over the cases following some missteps in the handling of drug cases by the Dunkirk Police.

Dunkirk's top police official said he is pleased that federal prosecutors are taking over the case involving two Dunkirk residents who were charged after a drug raid in the city last month. Acting U.S. Attorney James Kennedy, Jr. announced Tuesday that 49-year-old Minerva Maestre and 23-year-old Hector Mercede-Torres of Dunkirk were arrested after a raid at 51 East Second Street on April 28th. Maestre and Mercede-Torres have been charged with conspiracy to possess with intent to distribute and distribution of cocaine and crack cocaine; and maintaining a drug-involved

Dunkirk City Residence to get tax increase

Despite low voter turnout, voters in the Dunkirk City School District have given their support to the District's 2017-18 forty-three point four million dollar budget. Voters approved the budget by a vote count of 218 yes votes and 66 no votes.

School Superintendent Dr. James Tracy, who says he's pleased with the outcome, outlines some of the challenges in preparing the budget.

The budget includes a 2.33 percent tax increase.

Vehicle in the ditch in Kittanning results in charges against Dunkirk teen

A report of a vehicle in the ditch in the town of Kittanning on May 14 has led to several charges being filed against 17-year-old Dunkirk male. Chautauqua County Sheriff's deputies responded to the call around 3 am and arrested and charged the male youth with Felony DWI-Leandra's Law after a child aged 15 or younger was inside the vehicle at the time of the incident.

The teenage motorist, who was not identified, was also charged with DWAI combination of alcohol and drugs, unlawful possession of marijuana and unlawful possession of alcohol and move from lane unsafely. He/She appear in Kittanning Town Court at a later date.

Fredonia Village trustees approve water and sewer rate increases

Fredonia Village trustees have given the go ahead for an increase in water and sewer rates, but during the public hearings held before Monday night's vote, a handful of James Place residents turned out and questioned why rates were going up when their tap water remains discolored. Mayor Athanka Landis says she sides with the residents and says that's why there is a need for the rate increases...

Dr. Landis-Rate hike will cover cost of improvements

Water rates will increase to $4.80 per thousand gallons for village water users. Sewer rates will increase to $6.17 per thousand gallons.

Johnson named new SUNY Chancellor

The State University of New York Board of Trustees Monday announced the appointment of Dr. Kristina Johnson as the 13th chancellor of SUNY, the largest comprehensive system of public higher education in the United States.

"Throughout her distinguished career, Kristina Johnson has not only been a faculty member, administrator, and visionary in higher education but also a dedicated public servant, national energy czar, successful entrepreneur, and an acclaimed inventor," said SUNY Chairman H. Carl McCall. "We are thrilled to welcome her to SUNY, where her range of experience will enable her to leverage the incredible work of our 64 colleges and universities. On behalf of the SUNY Board of Trustees and Search Committee, I want to thank Governor Cuomo, whose commitment to public higher education helped us to attract a top candidate, and Nancy Zimpher, whose leadership of SUNY over the last eight years has raised the profile of this position to an all-time high."

"Dr. Johnson is a proven leader and innovator whose cross-sector experience and expertise to the role of SUNY Chancellor, and I look forward to hearing her ideas for SUNY that Governor Cuomo, Chancellor Zimpher, and the Board of Trustees have time and again she has bridged the gap between higher education and business to create the most advanced energy research. And as a former faculty member turned entrepreneur, she has in her career," said Dr. Johnson. "I look forward to building on the excellent foundation that Governor Cuomo, Chancellor Zimpher, and the Board of Trustees have created at the hands of Dr. Johnson."
More sponsors pull out of New York’s Puerto Rican parade

NEW YORK (AP) — AT&T and JetBlue Airways have dropped sponsorship of the upcoming Puerto Rican Day parade after the decision by organizers to honor a freed nationalist.

The businesses are the latest sponsors to skip the parade. Oscar Lopez Rivera spent more than 35 years in prison before his sentence was commuted. He was a member of an armed resistance that claimed responsibility for more than 100 bombings in the U.S. and Puerto Rico in the 1970s and 1980s. JetBlue said the debate was dividing the community and it would instead redirect funds to support student scholarships.

AT&T said it was withdrawing sponsorship.

Parade organizers stand by their decision to honor Lopez Rivera. They say they do not condone violence.

Backlash over plans to honor Puerto Rican militant at parade

NEW YORK (AP) — Organizers of New York City’s Puerto Rican Day parade are sticking with their decision to honor a freed militant who once embraced armed resistance to U.S. rule of Puerto Rico, despite a promised boycott by Hispanic police officers and criticism from salsa star Willie Colon.

New York Police Commissioner James O’Neill on Monday became the latest person to say he wouldn’t march in the parade because of the decision to recognize Oscar Lopez Rivera, who served decades in prison for his involvement in The Armed Forces of National Liberation, or Faln.

During the 1970s and 1980s, Faln claimed responsibility for more than 100 bombings in the U.S. and Puerto Rico, including a blast that killed four people at New York’s historic Fraunces Tavern in 1975.

Lopez Rivera wasn’t convicted in any of the bombings, but a former Faln member testified that he instructed members on how to make bombs. He served 35 years until his sentence was commuted by President Barack Obama.

The 74-year-old has thousands of supporters who see him as a political prisoner, jailed for seeking independence for Puerto Rico, a U.S. territory.

The board of directors of the National Puerto Rican Day Parade released a statement Monday defending their decision to name Lopez Rivera as “Procer de la Libertad” — National Freedom Hero — for the June 11 parade.

“We understand that others may not be able to be with us,” the statement said. “However, we will continue to represent all voices, with an aim to spark dialogue and find common ground, so that we can help advance our community and build cultural legacy.”

The New York Police Department’s Hispanic Society, which in the past has sent a few hundred officers to the parade, announced last week that it wouldn’t participate this year. Some of those permanently maimed in Faln bombings were police officers.

“We will take a stance in support of the members of service who were seriously injured and with the families of the innocent people who lost their lives,” society president Jenirmarie Garcia-Cruz said in a statement.

The Rafael Ramos foundation, a nonprofit named for a slain officer that raises awareness of the danger of being in law enforcement, is also skipping the parade. O’Neill said he might attend to offer support to officers working but wouldn’t march.

Goya Foods, which has sponsored every parade since it began in 1958, said that it wouldn’t do this year, calling it a business decision.

An online petition demanding the title be revoked has about 2,000 signatures. Colon, the Puerto Rican salsa singer, wrote on his blog that parade organizers went too far, but he stopped short of saying he’d skip.

“I am compelled to denounce terrorism in any form for any reason,” he wrote. Gov. Andrew Cuomo hasn’t decided yet. Mayor Bill de Blasio will march.

“The mayor believes Mr. Lopez Rivera served his time and appropriately renounced terror and violence,” a mayoral spokesman said.

Lopez Rivera continues to be a beloved figure among many of New York’s Puerto Ricans.

City Council Speaker Melissa Mark-Viverito, who was born in Puerto Rico, and more than 30 other lawmakers sent a letter to the parade’s board Monday commending the decision to honor Lopez Rivera.

“As countless families continue to struggle in Puerto Rico’s current fiscal crisis, Oscar is a reminder of the hope that has always anchored the island,” the letter said.

At a crowded press conference Monday, union workers cheered the decision.

“Oscar’s commitment has always been and continues to be the well-being of the Puerto Rican people,” said Shirley Aldebol, a vice president for the service union Seiu affiliate 32BJ.

Lopez Rivera was released last week from house arrest in Puerto Rico, where he’d been since his sentence was commuted in January. He got a hero’s welcome and then traveled to Chicago, where a parade was thrown in his honor and a street sign bearing his name was unveiled.

Reacción violenta por los planes para honrar a militantes de Puerto Rico en el desfile

NUEVA YORK (AP) - Los organizadores del desfile puertorriqueño de Nueva York se aferman a su decisión de honrar a un militante liberado que una vez abrazó la resistencia armada al gobierno de Puerto Rico a pesar del prometido boicot de los policías hispanos y las críticas de la estrella de la salsa Willie Colon.

El comisionado de la Policía de Nueva York, James O’Neill, se convirtió en la última persona en afirmar que no marcharía en el desfile debido a la decisión de reconocer a Oscar López Rivera, que cumplió décadas en prisión por su participación en las Fuerzas Armadas de Liberación Nacional, o Faln.

Durante los años setenta y ochenta, Faln reclamó responsabilidad por más de 100 atentados en Estados Unidos y Puerto Rico, incluyendo una explosión que mató a cuatro personas en la histórica Fraunces Tavern de Nueva York en 1975.

López Rivera no fue condenado en ninguno de los atentados, pero un ex miembro de Faln declaró que instruyó a los miembros sobre cómo hacer bombas. Sirvió 35 años hasta que su sentencia fue commuted by el presidente Barack Obama.

El de 74 de años tiene miles de seguidores que lo ven como un héroe político, encarcelado por buscar la independencia para Puerto Rico, un territorio EE.UU.

La junta directiva del Desfile Nacional del Día de Puerto Rico emitió hoy una declaración en la que defiende su decisión de nombrar a López Rivera como “Procer de la Libertad” - Héroe de la Libertad Nacional - para el desfile del 11 de junio.

Sociedad Hispánica de la policía de Nueva York, que en el pasado ha enviado a unos cientos de oficiales para el desfile, anunció la semana pasada que no participaría este año. Algunos de los que permanentemente estaban muriendo en los bombarderos Faln eran oficiales de la policía.

“Tomaremos una postura en apoyo a los miembros del servicio que resultaron gravemente heridos y con las familias de los inocentes que perdieron la vida”, dijo el presidente de la compañía, Jenirmarie Garcia-Cruz, en un comunicado.

La fundación Rafael Ramos, una organización sin fines de lucro nombrada para un agente asesinado que aumenta la conciencia del peligro de estar en la aplicación de la ley, también está saltando el desfile. O’Neill dijo que podría asistir a ofrecer apoyo a los oficiales que trabajan, pero no marcharían.

Goya Foods, que ha patrocinado cada desfile desde que comenzó en 1958, dijo que no lo haría este año, llamándolo una decisión de negocios.

Una petición en línea que exige que el título sea revocado tiene alrededor de 2.000 firmas. Colon, el cantante puertorriqueño de salsa, escribió en su blog que los organizadores del desfile, que ellos fueron más allá de un desfile y que no atendería el desfile, escribió una nota diciendo: “Estoy obligado a denunciar el terrorismo en cualquier forma y por cualquier razón”. El gobernador Andrew Cuomo aún no ha dicho. El alcalde Bill de Blasio lo marchará. “El alcaldes cree que el señor López Rivera cumplió su tiempo y renunció apropiadamente al terror y la violencia”, dijo un portavoz del alcalde.

López Rivera sigue siendo una figura amada entre muchos puertorriqueños de Nueva York.

El presidente del Consejo Municipal Melissa Mark-Viverito, nacido en Puerto Rico, y más de 30 legisladores enviaron una carta a la junta del desfile el lunes elogiando la decisión de honrar a López Rivera.

“A medida que ennumeables familias siguen luchando en la actual crisis fiscal de Puerto Rico, Oscar es un recordatorio de la esperanza que siempre ha anclado la isla”, dijo la carta.

En una ruidosa conferencia de prensa, los trabajadores del sindicato animaron la decisión.

“El compromiso de Oscar siempre ha sido y sigue siendo el bienestar del pueblo puertorriqueño”, dijo Shirley Aldebol, vicepresidenta del sindicato de empleados de los sindicato Seiu 32BJ.

López Rivera fue liberado la semana pasada del arresto domiciliario en Puerto Rico, donde había estado desde que su sentencia fue commuted en enero. Recibió la bienvenida de un héroe y luego viajó a Chicago, donde un desfile fue lanzado en su honor y una señal de la calle con su nombre fue desvelado.
Racing to Catch Up
WHEN BAKUL PATEL started as a policy advisor in the US Food and Drug Administration in 2008, he could pretty much pinpoint when a product was going to land in front of the reviewers in his division. Back when medical devices were heavy on the hardware—your pacemakers and your IUDs—it would take manufacturers years to get them ready for regulatory approval. FDA reviewers could keep up pretty well.

But as computer code took on more complex tasks, like spotting suspicious moles and quantifying blood flow, their duties began to accelerate. Software developers needed months, not years, to make it to the market. And there were a lot of them. It got harder to match pace. And then came artificial intelligence.

Today, machine learning powers more and more medical device software. And because it is always learning and improving, it is constantly changing products on the fly. For most regulators, an ever-changing algorithm is their worst nightmare. But Patel is one of those rare Washington bureaucrats who’s also a fervently optimistic futurist. And he’s got big plans to get federal regulators off Washington time and up to Silicon Valley speeds.

To do that, the FDA is creating a new unit dedicated strictly to digital health. Patel will be hiring 13 engineers—software developers, AI experts, cloud computing whizzes—to prepare his agency to regulate a future in which health care is increasingly mediated by machines. (He’s using funds generated by the medical device division’s user fee system, which is FDA’s only other revenue stream besides congressional appropriations.) He’s also got plans to reimagine the path these machines will take to regulatory approval.

For technology giants getting into the health care game, the timing couldn’t be better. Last year Google’s venture capital arm (which manages around $2.4 billion) spent one-third of its investments in the health care space. Its spinoffs Calico and Verily are pursuing augmented and virtual reality-based home care, Project Baseline—collaborating with the Boston Children’s Hospital, Apple, in addition to its wellness through wearables play, is already working closely with the FDA on an app to diagnose Parkinson’s. And IBM is employing its artificial intelligence engine, Watson, to do everything from treating cancers to discovering new drugs.

Over the last year, FDA has put out a number of documents describing the agency’s current thinking on digital health. These guidances help developers understand what FDA does and what it doesn’t regulate as a medical device, and they reflect a largely hands-off approach. The FDA focuses its limited resources mostly on high-risk products, and the most recent of its proposed rules addresses software as a medical device—a category that would include medical apps, which remain largely unregulated.

3D-printed 'bionic skin' could give robots the sense of touch
Engineering researchers at the University of Minnesota have developed a revolutionary prototype for 3D printing stretchable electronic sensory devices that could give robots the ability to feel their environment. The discovery is also a major step forward in printing electronics on real human skin.

The research will be published in the next issue of Advanced Materials and is currently online.

"This stretchable electronic fabric we developed has many practical uses," said Michael McAlpine, a University of Minnesota mechanical engineering associate professor and lead researcher on the study. "Putting this type of 'bionic skin' on sentient robots would give surgeons the ability to actually feel during minimally invasive surgeries, which would make surgery easier instead of just using cameras like they do now. These sensors could also make it easier for other robots to walk and interact with their environment."

McAlpine, who gained international acclaim in 2013 for integrating electronics and novel 3D-printed nanomaterials to create a "bionic ear," says this new discovery could also be used to print electronics on real human skin. This ultimate wearable technology could eventually be used for health monitoring or by soldiers in the field to detect dangerous chemicals or explosives.

"While we haven't printed on human skin yet, we were able to print on the curved surface of a model hand using our technique," McAlpine said. "We also interfaced a printed device with the skin and were surprised that the device was so sensitive that it could detect your pulse in real time."

McAlpine and his team made the unique sensing fabric with a one-of-a-kind 3D printer they built in the lab. The multifunctional printer has four nozzles to print the various specialized "inks" that make up the layers of the device—a base layer of silicone, top and bottom electrodes made of a conducting ink, a coil-shaped pressure sensor, and a sacrificial layer that holds the top layer in place while it sets. The supporting sacrificial layer is later washed away in the final manufacturing process.

Surprisingly, all of the layers of "inks" used in the flexible sensors can set at room temperature. Conventional 3D printing using liquid plastic is too hot and too rigid to use on the skin. These flexible 3D printed sensors can stretch up to three times their original size.

"This is a completely new way to approach 3D printing of electronics," McAlpine said. "We have a multifunctional printer that can print several layers to make these flexible sensory devices. This could take us in so many directions from health monitoring to energy harvesting to chemical sensing."

Receta del Mes

Arroz en una piña
(Cocina Nuevo Latino)

Servir el arroz en una piña no solo aprovechas toda la fruta sino que queda más vistoso
4 porciones

Ingredientes:
Aceite para freir
1 cebolleta en aros finos
2 dientes de ajo picados
1 cdita de curry en polvo*
1/2 cucharadita de cúrcuma en polvo
300g arroz hervido*
1 piña de aprox. 1,2 kg
Salsa de soja al gusto
Azúcar al gusto*
1 Cebolleta para adornar

Preparación:
Cortar la piña longitudinalmente, vaciar el contenido de ambas mitades y cortarlo en dados. Mezclar los dados de piña con la cebolleta, cebollas y ajo, freír y retirar.
Por otra parte freír brevemente el curry y la cúrcuma con poco aceite, añadir el arroz ya hervido y saltear de 2 a 3 minutos.
La mezcla de piña con cebolleta, cebolla y ajo añadirlo en las dos mitades de la piña y hornear unos 5 minutos a 200ºC, antes precalentar el horno.
Sacar del horno y mezclar junto al arroz, servirlo con azúcar y salsa de soja al gusto.

Wonder Woman – La Mujer Maravilla – June 2

En la protegida y paradisíaca isla tropical de Themyscira, Diana Prince (Gal Gadot) es una princesa guerrera amazona que ha sido criada por su madre, la reina Hippolyta (Connie Nielsen), y sus tías, la General Antiope (Robin Wright) y Menalippe (Lisa Loven Kongsli). Diana ha sido entrenada para ser una luchadora invencible. Pero, mientras Hippolyta quiere proteger a su hija del mundo exterior, Antiope quiere que esté preparada para salir fuera de la isla.

Todo cambia en la vida de la princesa cuando el piloto estadounidense, Steve Trevor (Chris Pine) se estrella por accidente en la isla. Levanto con ella a Diana la existencia de un conflicto masivo en el exterior, una guerra mundial que está causando el caos en todo el mundo. Es entonces cuando la princesa tomará la decisión de abandonar su hogar y los paradisíacos terrenos de Themyscira, con el objetivo de salvar al mundo. La amazona se topará así con un entorno completamente desconocido por ella, tomando partido en la Primera Guerra Mundial.

Before she was Wonder Woman (Gal Gadot), she was Diana, princess of the Amazons, trained to be an unconquerable warrior. Raised on a sheltered island paradise, Diana meets an American pilot (Chris Pine) who tells her about the massive conflict that’s raging in the outside world. Convinced that she can stop the threat, Diana leaves her home for the first time. Fighting alongside men in a war to end all wars, she finally discovers her full powers and true destiny.

GRU 3 – June 30th.

Claro que ahora, Gru se enfrenta a otros problemas. Y es que va a conocer a su hermano gemelo Dru, un multimillonario igualito que él, pero con pelo largo y rubio que viste de blanco. Dru es excentrico y extrovertido y Gru, aunque con sentido del humor, sigue siendo un cascarrollarías. Además, ahora Gru tendrá que decidir si está listo para continuar la tradición familiar de dedicarse al crimen, y unirse a su hermano para llevar a cabo un último golpe. Aunque ha dejado esa vida atrás… volverá a ser malo?

Of course, now, Gru is facing other problems. And is that he will meet his twin brother Dru, a billionaire just like him, but with long blond hair that you wear in white. Dru is eccentric and outgoing and Gru, although with a sense of humor, is still a crank. In addition, now Gru will have to decide if he is ready to continue the family tradition of engaging in crime, and join his brother to carry out a final blow. Although he has left that life behind ...

Luis Fonsi, Daddy Yankee, y Justin Bieber “Despacito” es la canción No. 1 en el Hot 100

Luis Fonsi, Daddy Yankee, And Justin Bieber’s “Despacito” is the first Spanish-language song to reach the top spot in over 20 years. By Ben Dandridge-Lemco

Luis Fonsi, Daddy Yankee, and Justin Bieber’s “Despacito” has reached the No. 1 spot on the Hot 100, Billboard reports. The song becomes the first Spanish-language track to reach the top spot on the chart in more than 20 years, following a 14-week run at No. 1 for “Macarena” in 1996. “Despacito” is the first No. 1 for Fonsi and Daddy Yankee, while Bieber earns his fifth.

“Despacito” tallied 54.3 million U.S. streams in the week ending May 11, and topped the Digital Song Sales chart with 104,000 downloads. The song’s remix with Justin Bieber, released on April 17, made up 73 percent of the song’s sales in the past week before reaching No. 1. The song has previously reached the top of the charts in more than 30 different countries.

Bieber, who earned the No. 1 song in the past week with DJ Khalid’s “The One,” is the only artist to replace himself at No. 1 with two different songs. Khalid’s single fell to No. 3 on the chart.

“Despacito” es la primera canción en español que alcanza el primer lugar en más de 20 años. Por Ben Dandridge-Lemco

Luis Fonsi, Daddy Yankee and Justin Bieber “Despacito” has reached the number one spot in the Hot 100, reports Billboard. The song was featured in the first Spanish-language song to reach the top spot on the chart in more than 20 years, from a career of 14 semanías en el número 1 de Macarena en 1996. Despacito is the primo número 1 Fonsi and Daddy Yankee, mientras que Bieber ganó su quinto.

“Despacito” registró 54.3 millones de transmisiones estadounidenses en la semana que terminó el 11 de mayo y superó la lista de ventas de canciones digitales con 104.000 descargas. El remix de la canción con Justin Bieber, lanzado el 17 de abril, representó el 73 por ciento de las ventas de la canción en la semana pasada antes de alcanzar el número 1. La canción ya ha alcanzado la cima de las listas en más de 30 países diferentes.

Bieber, quien ganó la canción No. 1 en la semana pasado con “The One” de DJ Khalid, es el único artista que se reemplazó en el número uno con dos canciones diferentes. El sello de Khalid cayó al tercer lugar en la tabla.

Blue Heron

By Jaiddie Ortiz

The blue heron awaits my visit by the falls
Some say since noon.
I shot it from different angles
When I climbed the hill, it flew away.
It took my dreams and liberty my sanity and reality...
Enveloped by shadows I stand. My soul permeated by the rain fall
And the rain drips, drips, drips, drips

The blue heron awaits my visit by the falls
Some say since noon.
I shot it from different angles
When I climbed the hill, it flew away.
It took my dreams and liberty my sanity and reality...
Enveloped by shadows I stand. My soul permeated by the rain fall
And the rain drips, drips, drips, drips

Favor is Absolutely Fair
By Evelyn Albino

I have heard time and time again that "favor ain't fair." So if we are saying, "favor ain't fair," Are we saying, "God ain't fair?"

I have been blessed to be the recipient of God’s favor in some things but not everything. I know people that seem to live under the “favor spout” while others have never found the place where favor is poured out. Sooo, maybe "Favor ain't fair." Except something in me relented and the argumentation of favor ain’t fair and its God's favor, that would make God not fair. I decided to find the answer once for all and opened my Bible. I found there were men and women who received the favor of God and many who did not. I also discovered that every single person who received God’s favor had one thing in common, FAITHFUL OBEDIENCE.

Take Noah for example. Genesis 6:8 says that Noah found grace (or favor) in the eyes of the Lord. Why? Was it a random choice? Did God like his name or the family he was born in? Genesis 6:9-9 explains why God’s favor rested on Noah and through him allowed life to continue on earth, "Noah was a just man, perfect in his generations. Noah walked with God." Hebrews 11:7 again repeats, "By FAITH, Noah….became an heir of the righteousness which is according to faith." The Bible says that Noah was a Preacher of Righteousness and I believe that during the years of building and preaching, God gave everyone the opportunity to share in the favor He bestowed upon Noah. Obviously, no one else obeyed God’s command, so was God’s favor unfair? That’s just ONE example but there are several others such as Abraham.

Abraham was born in a pagan land to a family who worshipped pagan gods, yet somehow out of his family, Abraham knew and believed in the one true God because when he heard God’s voice, he obeyed without hesitation. Why was Abraham blessed along with all of his descendants? Hebrews 11:8 answers the question, "By faith Abraham obeyed when he was called to go out to the place which he should receive as an inheritance." Because of Abraham’s FAITHFUL OBEDIENCE, Galatians promised, “in you all the nations shall be blessed.” Because of the favor shown to Abraham, his descendants become “God’s Chosen People.” We also have the opportunity to share in the promise according to Galatians 3:8, “So then those who are of faith are blessed with believing Abraham.” Now there is a condition, FAITHFUL OBEDIENCE. Is God being unfair to those who are not of faith?

God’s favor is always FAIR. Maybe, not fair as we would measure it with our limited knowledge, but ALWAYS fair according to the plan of God. When we finally learn to SUBMIT our actions, thoughts, decisions and our ENTIRE life to God we will walk in FAITHFUL OBEDIENCE and rest in the knowledge that God’s favor is ABSOLUTELY FAIR.

A New Way of Reading Scripture with a Twist, of course

Is the Bible Mystery? If it isn’t how do I read it? Can I see myself and understand my lived reality within the pages of the Bible? In other words, does the Bible speak to the lived realities of those who have dedicated their lives to digging deeper than the surface level of Scripture have come to see images of us within its pages. In this new reading of Scripture we have come to see Doña Juanita, Doña Ana y Don Juan within its pages. Tu vida, familia y situación están en la Santa Biblia.

Understanding the Scriptures is more than simply reading the Bible or saying, “Thus, saith the Lord.” Many theologians of color (people who study divine things or religious truth; divinity) have concluded that a new reading of the Scriptures with a particular lens from their own lived reality helps us to experience a human Christ who is like us. Latina/o theologians have come to see the Jesus is not only Palestinian he is also from the barrio called the Lower West Side of Buffalo, NY. How do you view the world?

Many theologians and lay people (non-ordained) begin their exploration of the Sacred and come to theological questions, values, beliefs and understandings from the lens of their particular lives. Their lives are the locus of our encounter with the Christ. The Christ is not an abstract figure of yesterday but an intimate friend who lives, breathes, walks and is ever present in our daily existence. God, in the person of Christ, may have been a Jewish, Palestinian but he is also a brown skinned brother from the barrio who knows racism, sexism, ageism and is treated “less than” because of his accent, limited educational level and lower socio-economic class. He is you. Do you get it?

It is this intimate understanding of who we are, where we’ve been and the long road ahead that connects us in ways that others, often times, cannot understand or appreciate. Yet we, as theologians and hopefully you, as children of God, working with or living in base communities know that our story is also the Creator’s story. God is one of us. Wider than one of us. We are and have been connected to each other since the beginning of the time.

Moreover, we are fundamentally rooted in “familia” and have a communal understanding of salvation. We experience the word of the Gospels as a call to community transformation rather than solely an invitation to individual piety or salvation. It is in community that the Gospels come alive. It is in community that we celebrate a liturgy of “fiesta” because, often times, we are beat down and struggle as individuals. However, together as a community we are powerful. ¡Podemos! We are connected and we dare to celebrate in spite of the circumstances of life.

A Theology of Liberation: The Reverend Gustavo Gutiérrez, OP
Many of us embrace of the works of Father Gustavo Gutiérrez, OP; as articulated in his seminal work, A Theology of Liberation. He challenges us to understand and be involved in the transformation of the social structures that enslave the poor. He states, “if the poor person does not exist as an inescapable fact of destiny. His or her existence is not politically neutral, and it is not ethically innocent. The poor are a by-product of the system in which we live and for which we are responsible. They are marginalized by our social and cultural world. They are the oppressed, exploited proletariat, robbed of the fruits of their labor and deposed of their humanity. Hence the poverty of the poor is not a call to generous relief action, but a demand that we go and build a different social order.”

I am always working to build new social, political and spiritual structures that call us to recognize that we, the Children of God, are intimately connected. Your victory is mine. You sadness is mine. Mine, I trust, is also yours. We need to dare look at our lives openly and honestly and acknowledge our responsibility in the devaluing of others, our support of structures that enslave others whether directly or indirectly and our need to repent of the social, political and spiritual sin that we commit when we negate the “least of our brothers and sisters” (Matthew 25:40).

Likewise, we need to stand up and applaud others (and ourselves) when we engage systems that violate others and call them to task for their exploitation and/or violation of human dignity. We are called to journey with, affirm, embrace and support the human dignity and worth of all. I try to live this out, model it daily and invite others to do the same. The Gospel, for me, is about invitations rather than mandates or dictates.

Mujerista Theology: Hispanic Women’s Theology of Liberation
My radical inclusion and uplifting of the leadership roles of women comes from my embrace of the works of Mary Frances Gray, Professor Emerita of Ethics at Drew University, as articulated in her work, Mujerista Theology. It also comes from the devaluing of Mit’s (my mother’s) life. Isasi-Díaz’s work extols the role of Hispanic (Latina) women, especially the poor, in personifying Christian faith in the everyday struggles of life. “In part, Dr. Isasi-Díaz conceived of Mujerista, or ‘womanist,’ theology (from the Spanish word mujer, for woman) to distinguish her ideas from those of feminism — a term ‘rejected by many in the Hispanic community,’ she wrote in 1989, ‘because they consider feminism a preoccupation of white, Anglo women.’ She hoped that ‘Mujerism,’ which she considered a spiritual branch of the reform movement known as Liberation Theology, would help delineate the special identity shared by poor, Hispanic, and predominately Catholic women.

1’Hispanic women widely agree that, though we make up the vast majority of those who participate in the work of the churches, we do not participate in deciding what work is to be done,’ she wrote in 1989 in Christian Century, ‘Mujeristas: A Name of Our Own’ ‘We do the praying, but our understanding of the God to whom we pray is ignored.’

Isasi-Díaz argued that poor women, by the nature of their roles in their families and communities, ‘exercised their moral agency in the world’ more profoundly than any other group of the faithful. They did that in the small daily choices they made, she said: between bus fare and a 40-block walk to work, for instance; or between breakfast for oneself and one’s child. Those choices embodied immense moral power, and deserved to be honored in the form of greater roles for those women in their church.” (New York Times, June 5, 2012, article by Paul Vitello)

I’ve offered you a taste of Latino/a theology and how we find ourselves within the pages of Scripture. You’re in for a treat. Don’t just scratch the surface DIG DEEPER and discover your life and story in your new reading.

Citigroup pagará casi 100 millones por caso de negligencia NUEVA YORK (AP) – Citigroup accedió a pagar casi 100 millones de dólares a las autoridades federales de Estados Unidos para poner fin a un litigio con base en denuncias de que la negligencia y la falta de supervisión en la filial mexicana del banco permitieron a clientes incurrir en lavado de dinero. El Departamento de Justicia anunció el lunes que Banamex, la filial mexicana del banco, pagó 97.44 millones de dólares por violar la Ley de Secretos Bancarios de Estados Unidos. Citi no admitió culpabilidad alguna. Las autoridades federales sostienen que Banamex permitió más de 30 millones de remesas de Estados Unidos a México por un valor de aproximadamente 8.800 millones de dólares. Aunque el departamento interno de Banamex le advirtió al banco que había 18.000 transacciones sospechosas, Banamex investigó menos de 10. Citi, que ya antes había anunciado que cesaría las operaciones de Banamex en Estados Unidos, llegó al acuerdo con las autoridades para pagar esa suma a cambio de que no se le lleve a proceso.

CEOs got biggest raise since 2013

WASHINGTON (AP) – The compensation of the biggest U.S. companies got an 8.5 percent raise last year, ranking in $11.5 million in salary, stock and other compensation last year, according to a study by executive data firm Equilar for The Associated Press. That's the biggest raise in three years. The bump reflects how well stocks have done under these CEOs’ watch. Boards of directors increasingly require that CEOs push their stock price higher to collect their maximum possible payout, and the Standard & Poor's 500 index returned 12 percent last year. Over the last five years, median CEO pay in the survey has jumped by 19.6 percent, not accounting for inflation. That's nearly double the 10.9 percent rise in the typical weekly paycheck for full-time employees across the country.

The highest-paid executive in the survey was Thomas Rutledge of Charter Communications, which absorbed Time Warner Cable and Bright House Networks last year to become the nation's second-largest cable operator. His compensation totaled $98 million, about $88 million of that from stock and option awards. The bump reflects how well stocks have done under these CEOs’ watch. NASCAR: Daniel Suarez wins the Monster Energy race

Daniel Suarez, Ryan Blaney, Clint Bowyer and Chase Elliott all punched their ticket to the Monster Energy NASCAR All-Star Race last May. Every driver wanted their chance to take home $1 million on Saturday night. With the 2017 Monster Energy NASCAR All-Star Race set to pay out a lot of cash to one lucky winner, the Monster Energy Open offered plenty of incentive for those drivers that hadn’t earned their spot in the race yet.

Four spots open, with three stage wins and one via the fan vote, there was plenty on the line at Charlotte Motor Speedway on Saturday evening. To start the event, Clint Bowyer wasted no time winning the event and he made sure to lead every single lap as well.

After a strong showing at Kansas last week, Ryan Blaney kept it going at the Monster Energy Open. He was able to take the second stage and punch his ticket in. He will also be racing for the cash. In the final stage, Daniel Suarez put his best effort forward and took home the victory after holding off the competition on a late restart. He picked the right lane and that’s all he needed to be able to earn his spot in.

Rio Olympic planning assailed for ‘white elephant’ venues

Rio de Janeiro’s Olympic Park is looking into last year’s Rio de Janeiro Olympics says that many of the venues “are white elephants” that were built with “no planning.”

The scathing report offered Monday at a public hearing confirms what The Associated Press reported after the games ended. Many of the venues are empty, boarded up, and have no tenants or income with the maintenance costs dumped on the federal government.

“THERE was no planning,” federal prosecutor Leandro Mitidieri told the public hearing on the planning. “THERE was no planning when they put out the bid to host the Games. No planning. “They are white elephants today,” Mitidieri added. “We are trying to find if there is a way to turn this into something usable.”

Rio de Janeiro’s Olympic Park is looking into last year’s Rio de Janeiro Olympics says that many of the venues “are white elephants” that were built with “no planning.”

The scathing report offered Monday at a public hearing confirms what The Associated Press reported after the games ended. Many of the venues are empty, boarded up, and have no tenants or income with the maintenance costs dumped on the federal government.

“Their planning for this, the worst planning we ever saw,” saidAssociated Press.

The Olympic Park in suburban Barra da Tijuca, which was the largest cluster of venues, is an expanse of empty arenas with clutter still remaining from the games. The second largest cluster, in the northern area of Deodoro, is closed despise plans to open it as a public park with swimming facilities for the mostly poor who live in the area. President Michel Temer’s understudy for sports in the city told, said high publicly planned were plans on hold to dismantle one arena and turn the remains into four schools. The plans were on hold to dismantle one arena and turn the remains into four schools. The arena was the venue for handball.

“It will be dismantled,” she said. “We are just waiting to know whether we will actually have resources to build these schools on other sites, or whether we will dismantle it and wait for the resources to come. Our schools need to be reformed and that’s our priority, not the Olympic Park.”

Patricia Amorim, subsecretaria de Deportes de la ciudad de Rio, dijo que los publicitados planes para desmantelar uno de las sedes, la de balonmano, y construir cuatro escuelas con los restos están en suspensión.

“Las escuelas necesitan ser reformadas y esta es nuestra prioridad, no los centros nuevos,” dijo.

Nueve meses después del final de los Juegos de Rio, el comité olímpico sigue debiendo a sus acreedores unos 30 millones de dólares y de las sedes de las citas en la ciudad están oxidando y tienen que ser reparadas.

El feroz informe ofrecido durante una audiencia pública el lunes confirma los reportes de The Associated Press de que falta mucho en la ciudad olímpica. Muchas de las sedes están vacías, cerradas, y no tienen dueños ni ingresos y es el gobierno el que los mantiene los costos de su mantenimiento.

“Las medallas se repararán en la Casa da Moeda de Brasil. En los Juegos de Rio se repartieron más de 2.000 trofeos, apuntó el vocero señalando que "otros Juegos han tenido problemas con las medallas?.”

Nashville wants more history than just 1st Stanley Cup Final

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Nashville Predators, the final team into the NHL playoffs, are headed to the first Stanley Cup Final in franchise history.

Coach Peter Laviolette insists they won’t just be happy to be there either. “Our guys know the path of hard work,” Laviolette said. “They understand what it is that we’re trying to do here. And when that time comes, we’ll be ready.”

Colton Sissons scored a hat trick with his third goal the game-winner with 6:00 left, and goalie Pekka Rinne made 38 saves as the Predators beat the Anaheim Ducks 6-3 Monday night in Game 6 of the Western Conference finals.

The Predators now the team no one outside of Nashville expected to be here is waiting to face either champion Pittsburgh or Ottawa for the Stanley Cup.

Nashville’s magic run started by sweeping the West’s No. 1 seed in Chicago. The Predators downed St. Louis in six to reach their first conference finals, and now they’ve knocked off the Pacific Division champ in Anaheim, which lost for the second time in three years in the Western finals.

Goaltender Pekka Rinne, the Predators’ longest tenured-player at 34, called the victory an “amazing feeling.”

“It’s a funny thing though,” Rinne said. “Everything that is happening around us, you still feel hungry and now we have a chance to play for the Cup. It’s a pretty amazing feeling and we’re working hard for it. I think the last few years, we’ve been going in that direction, building this team and having more depth.”

That depth has paid off, particularly the last two games after losing top center Ryan Johansen after Game 4 to emergency surgery on his left thigh. Captain Mike Fisher, the Predators beat the Anaheim Ducks 6-3 Monday night in Game 6 of the Western Conference finals.

The First 100 Days of Fear

We can now put a number on the level of fear undocumented immigrants are experiencing. Since Donald Trump’s inauguration, authorities have deported at least 5,441 migrants who have no criminal record, according to The Washington Post. This is more than double the number deporting the same period last year under the Obama administration.

Those immigrants didn’t hurt anyone. They didn’t steal, rape, carry drugs across the border or drive under the influence of alcohol. Their only crime was entering the U.S. illegally in order to work. Such social media may help to humanize the attacks he’s bound to receive. For instance, videos have just emerged that allegedly show Eva Cadena, a former mayor candidate from MORENA, receiving the equivalent of about $25,000 in payments, allegedly to give to López Obrador.

López Obrador has worked hard to distance himself from the drug trade. But, again, those claims from his opponents “aren’t working,” he insists. “They are unbelievable as it may seem to those corrupt people, I don’t have checking accounts or credit cards. And not just now; for 40 years.”

He tells me that his opponents are accusing him of being authoritarian, intolerant, stubborn and bureaucratic. But those claims from his opponents “aren’t working,” he insists. “They are quite desperate.”

“I am not corrupt,” he told me, in what may become his campaign slogan. To him, corruption isn’t a cultural issue, as Peña Nieto has suggested, but “a problem that goes to the root of the problem.”

“I am not corrupt,” he told me, in what may become his campaign slogan. To him, corruption isn’t a cultural issue, as Peña Nieto has suggested, but “a problem that goes to the root of the problem.”

“What is known is that Trump has promoted distrust and hatred, with undocumented residents as his target.”

This first came to the public’s attention when he launched his presidential bid in June 2015 by calling Mexican immigrants criminals, drug dealers and rapists — an offensive lie, appealing to mistrust of outsiders. Fewer than 300,000 undocumented immigrants living in the U.S. have committed a felony, according to a recent study from the Migration Policy Institute. This amount is about one-tenth the total undocumented population. By comparison, about 6% of U.S.-born residents have committed felonies.

If Trump really wanted to focus on arresting and deporting dangerous criminals, nobody would oppose him. But it’s crucial to understand that this is a small group of people who are already represented in our foreign policy.

Nevertheless, Trump’s speeches and political stances have emboldened others to express their prejudices more openly, and that has made all immigrants vulnerable. “I’ve lived here for more than 30 years, and I’ve never experienced an anti-immigrant climate like this one: strong, pervasive and blunter.”

People may judge Trump’s performance during his first 100 days in office according to different factors, but for me and many immigrants, these have been 100 days of fear. We see ourselves: There are more than 1,300 ahead.
